

A wide-angle photograph of a city skyline, likely Hong Kong, viewed from a high vantage point. The foreground and middle ground are filled with numerous tall, modern skyscrapers and residential buildings. The city is shrouded in a thick, low-lying haze or smog that obscures the lower portions of the buildings and the ground. In the far background, a body of water is visible, with a few more distant buildings on the horizon. The sky is a pale, hazy blue. The overall atmosphere is one of a dense, urban environment under poor air quality conditions.

Isn't Beautiful?

This's not cloud.
This's the smoke above the city

Air Pollution

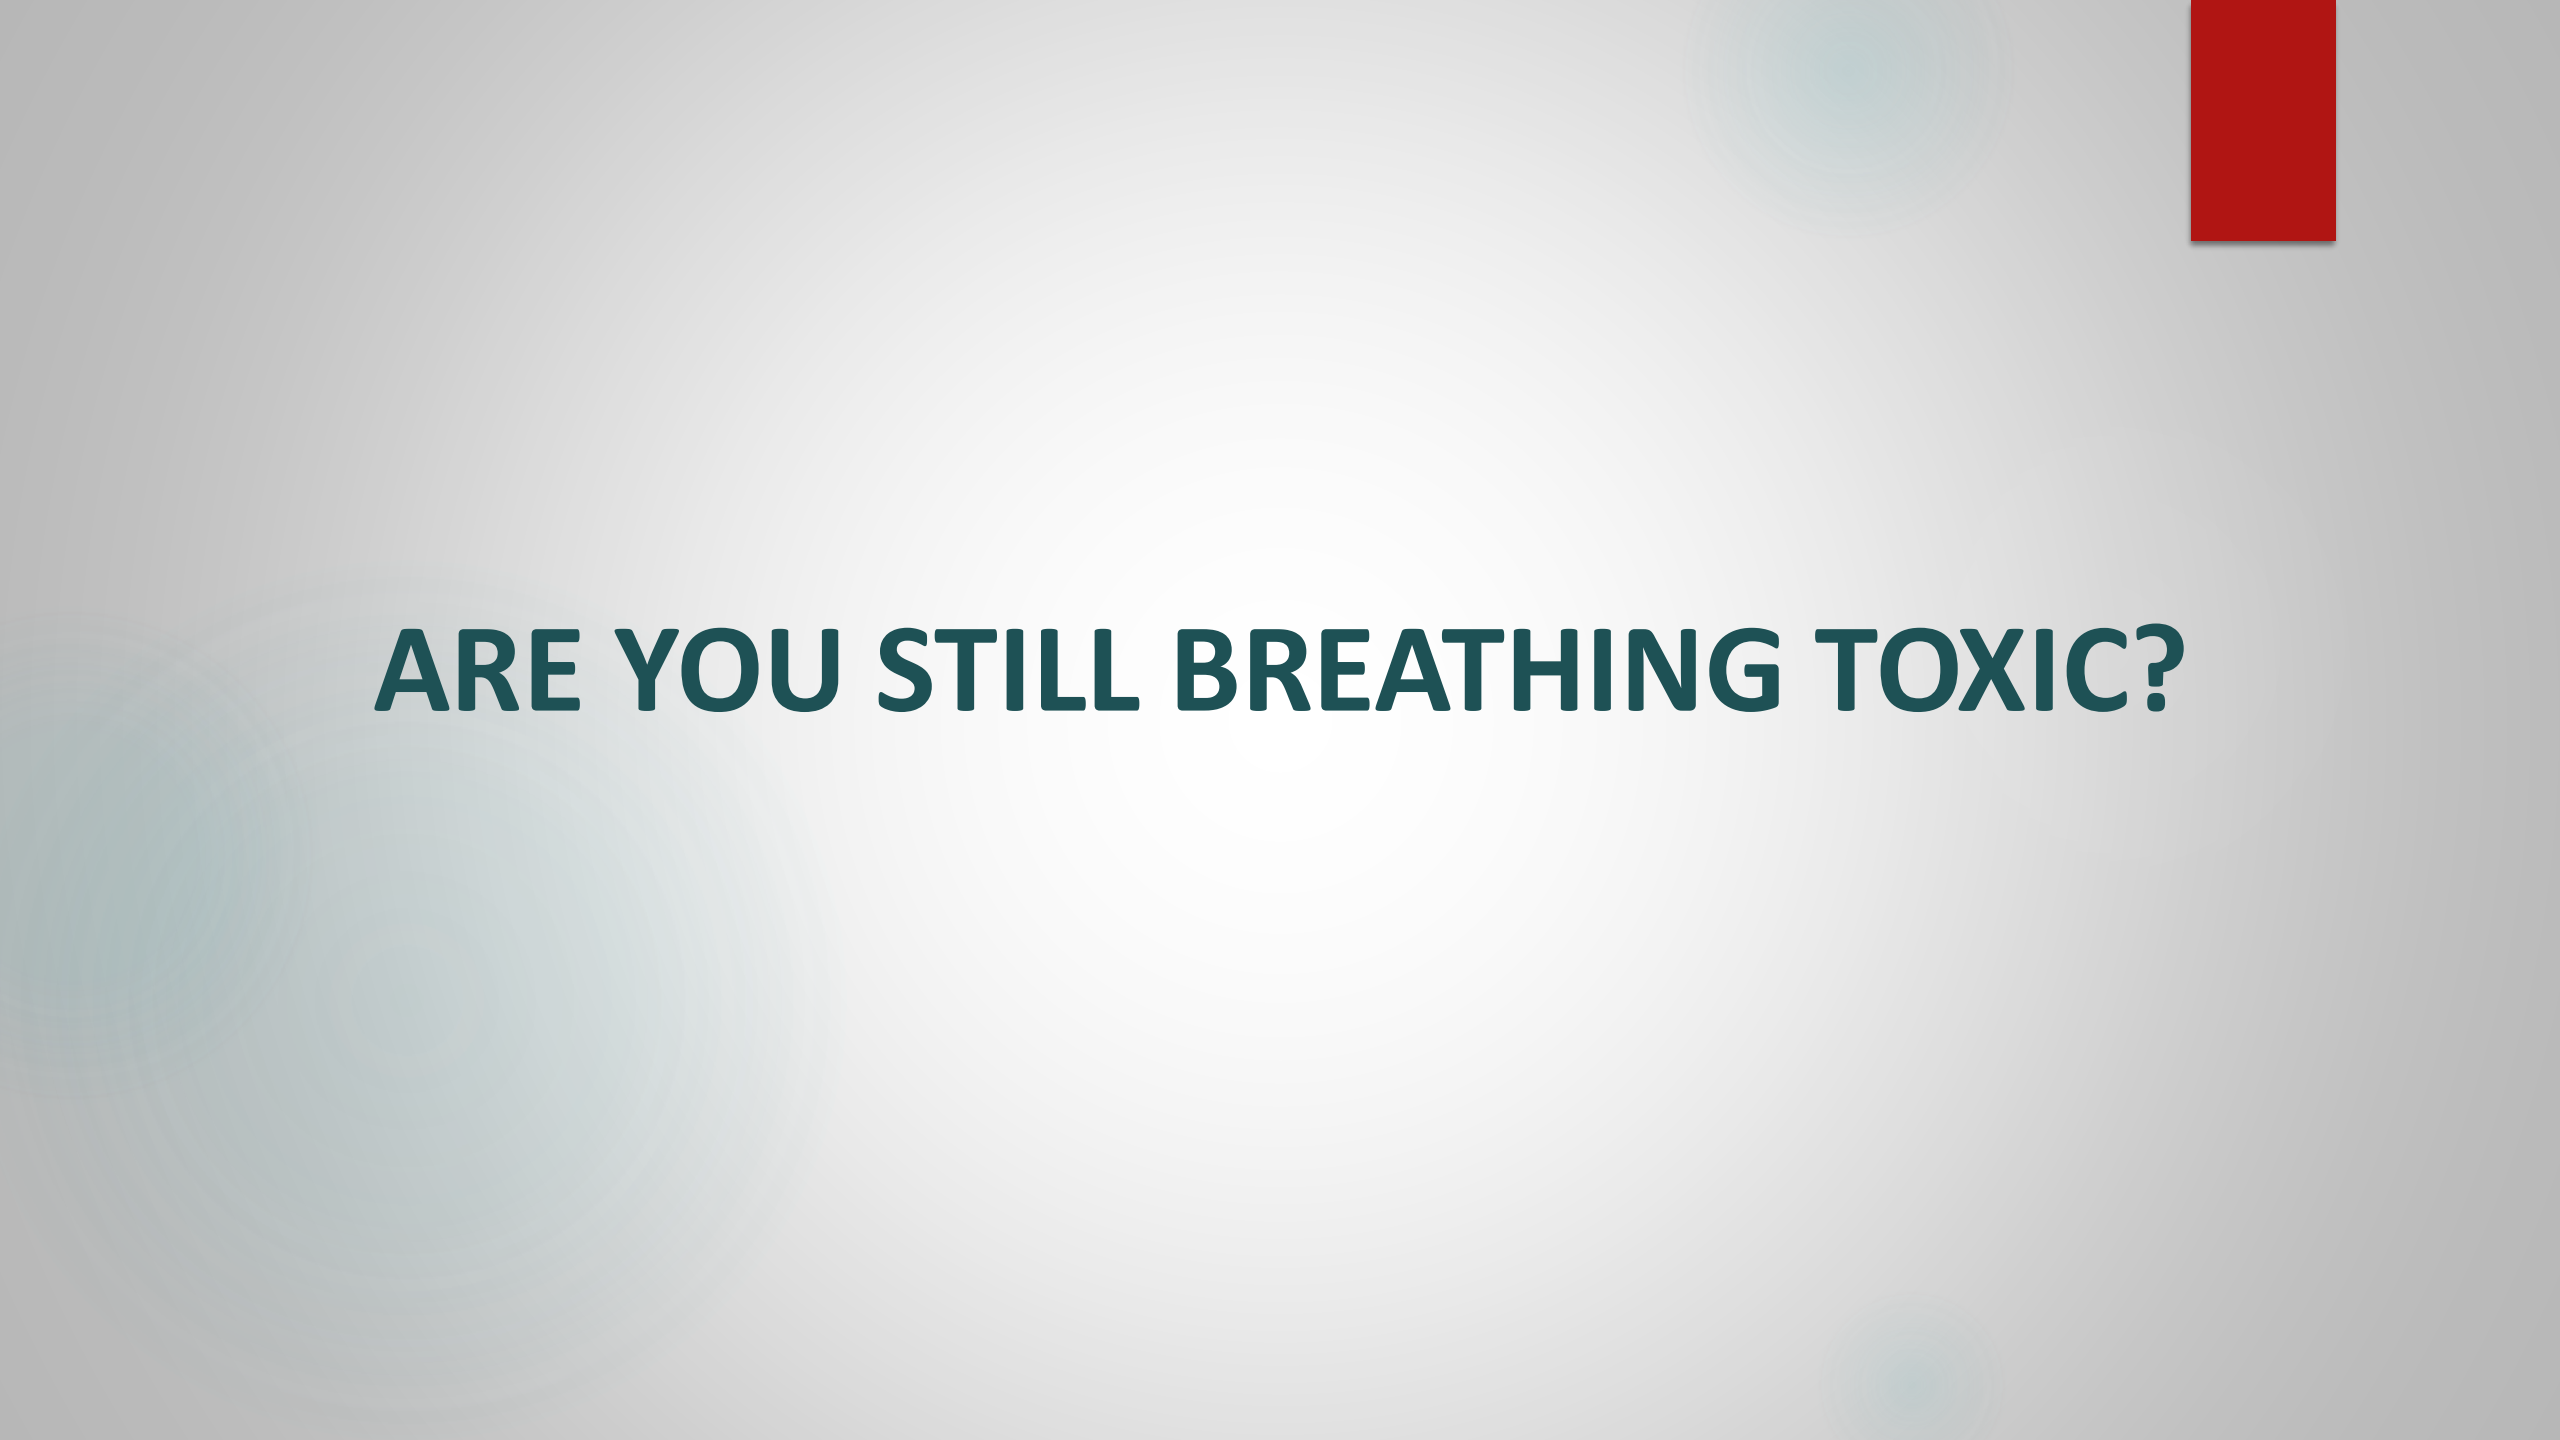

- In 2022, Air pollution is the biggest and most pressing environmental threat to health and responsible for 1 in 9 premature deaths around the world.
- In WHO South-East Asia Region an average of 63% of all households are exposed to unacceptable levels of household air pollution.

For people in cities in the region, 99% of cities are breathing air far in excess of WHO Guideline levels.

How Bad it's

- Cardiovascular disease, chronic obstructive respiratory diseases and lung cancer in adults and acute lower respiratory tract infections in children under- five are among the key avoidable causes of diseases and premature death.
- The health impact of air pollution reveal considerable inequities disproportionately affecting the most vulnerable and disadvantaged in society.
